A Chapter on Counterfelt Notes.

Washington, 3.—Mr. Casilear, super-intendent of ergraving in the bureou of engraving and printing, and one of the most accompli-hed experts in the detec-tion of counterfait bank notes, thinks a new design for national bank notes ought to be adopted. The eld designs have been in use many years, and every denomination, except the $1 notes and the $1,000 notes, has been counterfeited. Large smounts of counterfeit national bank notes are probably in circulation now, the existence of which is unsus-pected.

now, the existence of which is unsuspected.

The fact that the design for any denomination of national bank notes is the same for all banks, with the exception of the name of all banks, with the exception of the name of the bank, renders the task of the counterfeiter comparatively easy. After Laving made his plats, he can throw out his notes as long as he finds a market for them, then when they become advertised as counterfeite, he can change the name of his bank and go on with his printing from the old plate. By a device adopted at the bureau of engraving and printing new plates may be made with the charter numbers of the respective national banks forming as conspicuous a portion of the general design that it would be easier to make a new plate than to change the old one.

As an evidence of the perfection which the counterfeiters sometimes attain, it may be said that an official of the Reverte may obtain that an officiate of the newvre bank in Boston, upon receiving back from the treasury department a $100 counterfeit of its own note, wrote a sharp letter criticising that the bank was rendy to receive all such notes, and that its offices recognized the signatures upon the returned note as their own. Only two denominations of the green-backs printed at the bursay of correction backs printed at the bureau of engraving and printing have ever been counter-feited, while all denominations of these printed from plates made by private companies have been counterfeited. Another Brush With Victorio.
